LIECHTENSTEIN

Passion For Water

A whole year has passed since their last record release (the debut album "Survival Strategies In A Modern World"), but now Liechtenstein are back! During this year the girls have, among other things, visited the US East Coast for a tour, travelled around in Europe (including a show in Vaduz, Liechtenstein!), and a new bass player - Ulrika Mild from synthpop band Compute - has joined the band.

The new single "Passion For Water", the fifth one from Liechtenstein, displays a somewhat new sound. The patented vocal harmonies are of course still present, as well as the feel for making fantastic pop melodies, but the sound is clearer, and the melodies more summery and groovy.

The jangly title track is probably the most dancy Liechtenstein song so far, and it brings to mind an imaginary eighties British beach party, where Mighty Mighty, The Siddeleys, The Desert Wolves and The Man From Delmonte have been mixed into a cooling pop cocktail.

With the trumpet raising "Passion For Water" to new heights, and the careful arrangements and beautiful vocal harmonies reminiscent of Dolly Mixture on "Spending Time With You", this is a Liechtenstein partly searching for new directions. However, the earlier post punk influences are not forgotten but represented by the finishing, short and punk-oriented "On The Tram".

The single contains a download code for the mp3 files of the songs, as well as a music video for the song "On The Tram".

PREVIOUSLY SAID ABOUT LIECHTENSTEIN:

"...Liechtenstein are different enough to stand out from the crowd. [...] Survival Strategies is a very backward-looking album -- to be sure you could have thrown it on your turntable in 1986 and it would have fit in perfectly with the surrounding sounds -- but it also sounds very good in the late 2000s, and that's what really counts..."

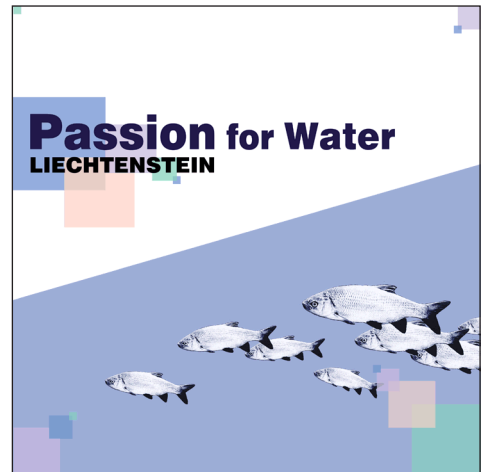

Allmusic

"...After the smash hit singles 'Apathy' & 'Stalking Skills', Swedens 3 pice indie femme janglers Liechtenstein unleash their first moderately sized album. 'Survival Strategies in a Modern World' is a beaut too. [...] The 9 tracks contained on [Survival Strategies In A Modern World] are all of a supreme quality, of mass appeal to quality post punk, C86 & Shoegaze lovers..."

Norman

"...Liechtenstein add a unique and fresh twist to the proceedings so it doesn't sound derivative but more like 3 women who want to join the ranks of those that came before them and I must say, they do a damn good job of it ..."
